ABSTRACT

As a part of the United Nations Environment Program (UNEP) International Referal System (IRS), the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency has been designated the U.S. national focal point. This publication is the second edition of the catalogue of environmental sources in the United States. The purpose of this publication is to guide the UNEP/IRS user to sources of environmental information in the U.S. The two principal sections of the publication are the subject listing and the directory of sources. Other sections include alphabetical and geographical listings of registered sources and other usage information. Information includes name of source, address, telephone number and activities. (MR)

16. ABSTRACT

A directory of 1114 United States environmental organizations (sources) registered with the U.S. National Focal Point of the United Nations Environment Program's International Referral System. Information about each organization includes address, telephone number, subject attribute, description of organization plus its sponsorship, community, activities, function. This 739 page directory includes four sections: Subject attribute listing; Directory of sources; Alphabetical listing of registered sources; and Geographical listing by State and City.

INTRODUCTION ABOUT UNEP/IRS

The United Nations Environment Program (UNEP) was created in 1972 as a direct result of the International Conference on Human Environment held in Stockholm, Sweden. UNEP is an independent agency of the United Nations and has its headquarters in Nairobi, Kenya. Its establishment evolved around three goals:

1. To promote international cooperation in the environmental field.
2. To keep under review the world environmental situation in order to assure that environmental problems of wide international significance receive appropriate consideration by governments.
3. To promote the acquisition, assessment, and exchange of environmental knowledge.

In order to assist in carrying out these goals, several programs were created within the UNEP structure, one of which is the International Referral System (UNEP/IRS). Composed of a network of over 70 national and international Focal Points, the International Referral System is engaged in identifying and registering sources of environmental information, transmitting these sources in a proper and unified format to the System's central data bank in Geneva, Switzerland, and serving as a point of contact for users who need referral services (National and International). The International Referral System is a referral service designed to link those who need environmental information with those who have the desired information.

In March 1975 the State Department designated the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency to serve as the U.S. National Focal Point and EPA formally opened its Center on October 6, 1975, at its Headquarters in Washington, D. C. The U.S. National Focal Point has been named the United States International Environmental Referral Center (USIERC).

GENERAL INFORMATION ABOUT THIS DIRECTORY

This directory includes sources registered with the United States International Environmental Referral Center as of July 1, 1977. Source registration forms processed after that date will be included in the Third Edition which is scheduled for publication in 1978.

The sources in this directory have been submitted to the International Referral System of the United Nations Environment Program for its international directory.

This directory is intended to help users locate environmental information sources in the United States without having to contact USIERC. It is by no means a complete directory, since new sources are constantly added to our data base. Over 5,000 United States organizations have been identified to date and invited to register. Registration is voluntary therefore only those organizations who have already completed and submitted source registration forms are included. This Second Edition includes 1,114 registered United States sources. The types of organizations registered as sources include:

Federal Agencies
State and Local Governments
Universities
Business and Industry
Societies and Associations
Laboratories
Information Centers
Consultants
Engineering Firms
Others.

Those individuals needing assistance in identifying international sources of information or additional United States sources, please contact USIERC for assistance. Our address is on the inside back cover of this publication.

HOW TO USE THE DIRECTORY

In order to provide maximum and efficient access to information on registered sources, the United States Directory is divided into four parts:

1. Section 1: Subject Attribute Listing
2. Section 2: Directory of Sources
3. Section 3: Alphabetical Listing of Registered Sources
4. Section 4: Geographical Listing of Registered Sources by State and City

SETP 1: Section 1. Subject Attribute Listing

This section is alphabetized according to the specific environmental subject terms (called attributes) which are included in the International Referral System. The registered sources having information on these terms are listed alphabetically under each subject:

SAMPLE ENTRY:

① = Attribute

② = International code for IRS Identification in other languages

③ = Name of source (alphabetized)

④ = Number of Source

Once the specific subject of interest is located in this section, pertinent information about each source can be found in Section 2 by referring to the specific source number.

STEP 2: Section 2. Directory of Sources

This section is arranged numerically by assigned source number. These numbers are obtained from Sections 1, 3, or 4 of this Directory.

SAMPLE ENTRY:	EXPLANATION OF ENTRY:

These are the descriptors used in matching requirements of users to holdings of sources.

The numbers preceding the word terms in this directory are international codes representing the meanings of the terms which they precede. These codes make it possible for the UNEP/IRS National Focal Points to communicate in any language by using codes instead of words.

STEP 3: REQUESTING INFORMATION FROM SOURCES

Once a source has been identified as a possibility for having the information sought, it is up to the user to get in touch with that particular source. In communicating with sources, please state specifically what information you are seeking. Do not use codes or subject attributes in correspondence since these are very broad terms. It is also suggested that telephone calls to sources be made only when material or information is urgently needed.

OTHER SECTIONS IN THIS DIRECTORY

Section 3: Alphabetical Listing of Registered Sources

This section gives a complete alphabetical listing of all registered sources by organization and assigned source identification numbers. It can be most helpful in discovering whether a particular organization is registered. If specific information is desired about a particular organization, then it can be found in Section 2 by using the source number.

Section 4: Geographical Listing of Registered Sources by State and City

This section is a compilation of registered sources arranged alphabetically by State and U.S. Territory under the city in which the source is located. Information includes the name of the organization, the unit comprising the source and the source identification number. The information in this section gives a geographic view of the location of registered environmental information sources in the United States. It also provides a means for locating a specific organization within a State and could be helpful in determining what unit of an organization in a given city is the source for environmental information.
